The Parochial Vicar Point of View

Dear Wonderful Parishioners and Visitors,
I hope you are enjoying this Labor Day Weekend! I know how hard so many of you work – work to provide for your families and loved ones. God blesses such work when done for the good of others and when united to the supreme work of Christ on the Cross.

There is a question connected to work that I think is worthy of pondering: Do I live to work, or do I work to live? In other words, what is the higher value: work or life? Of course, life is the higher value, so we should work to live, not the other way around. Work should serve our living, it should serve the lives of those we love. It should serve the Lord, who is our Life. We should work hard, yes, but working should be about living... living should not be about working and nothing more.

So on this Labor Day, I invite you to reflect on the role of work in your life, and whether those priorities are well-ordered to Christ, who is our Life, and who worked – who died – so that we might live.

God bless all of you!

Fr. Redmond
